

Global Trends in Packaging Affecting North American Converter and Supplier Markets

(2009 study update)

LPC, Inc.

2307 Kinney Road

Austin, TX 78704

P: (512) 444-2066

E: jennifer@lpcprint.com

W: www.lpcprint.com

Table of Contents

APTech/PRIMIR’s Objectives in Carrying Out the Research	6
Research Methodology – Qualitative	7
Research Methodology – Quantitative	8
Executive Summary	11
Market Sizing and Growth in the North American Printed Packaging Industry	20
Global Economic Shifts: Trade Imbalances, Off-shoring and Near-shoring Practices	35
Off-shoring vs. Re-shoring: Which is North America’s Future?	42
The Potential U.S. Manufacturing Crisis: An aging workforce, lack of appeal to younger generations and the lack of skill sets of new entrants	50
Compliance and Regulatory Standards Impacting North American Converters and Industry Suppliers	55
Low Migration Compliance in the Food Printed Packaging Sector	64

Table of Contents (cont.)

Serialization and Track & Trace Compliance	68
Recyclability and 'Green' Packaging Demands	71
Global Brand Owner-Driven Trends Impacting North American Printed Packaging Converters and Industry Suppliers	74
SKU Proliferation	77
Printed Packaging Complexity	80
Environmental Certification and Recycling Demands	83
Color Standardization and Job-to-Job Repeatability	87
Packaging Format Migration	91
Single-Serve Printed Packaging	94
Private Label Packaging – 'Own' Brands	97

Table of Contents (cont.)

Printed Packaging Vendor Consolidation	101
Impact Level of Identified Trends for Primary Printed Packaging End-Use Categories	106
The Global Trends in Packaging Study North American Converter Survey	110
The Digital Impact: Technology Adoption Rates and Trends per Printed Packaging Sector	124
Insights and Implications for APTEch/PRIMIR Members	135
Appendix	147
Glossary	148
Participating Brands and Retailers	151
Sources	152

